Native Americans Inhabitants
From “History of Nebraska” by James C. Olson and Ronald Clinton Naugle, published 1997: “The Pawnees and their northern relatives, the Arikaras, lived in the area the longest. They came from the south about four or five centuries ago and established villages along the Platte, Loup, Republican and other central Nebraska waterways. The Pawnees hunted buffalo on the plains and farmed beans, corn and squash.

In the 18th century, the Omaha, Ponca and Oto tribes entered eastern Nebraska and lived near the Missouri River. Other tribes, such as the Teton Sioux (Lakotas), Arapahoes and Cheyennes, migrated westward from forested areas north and east of the Missouri River.

Altogether, the various tribes living in the Nebraska area may have numbered about 40,000 people in 1800.”

European Settlement
Originally part of Louisiana Territory, the area now called Nebraska was purchased by the United States in 1803.

U.S. forts were set up near present day Omaha between 1813 and 1827.

Between 1830 and 1854, Nebraska was named Indian Territory.

Between the 1840’s and the 1860’s, pioneer wagons heading west passed through the Platte Valley over the Oregon, California, and Mormon Trails.

In 1854, the U.S. Congress named it Nebraska Territory. Nebraska conducted territorial censuses in 1854-1856.

In 1863, the first white settler staked a claim near Beatrice using the Homestead Act.

In 1865, workers began building the first railroad to the Pacific coast near Omaha. It was completed by 1869.

Statehood
In 1867, Nebraska became a state.

Nebraska’s greatest population growth occurred after the Civil War. Union veterans and other settlers came from eastern states to claim lands available under the Homestead Act of 1862. These settlers generally were from Ohio, New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Iowa, Indiana, and Missouri.

By 1876, Native American tribes had ceded all their land in Nebraska to the U.S. government.

Nebraska conducted a state census in 1885.
