Tennessee Genealogy Research

Tennessee is informally segregated into three "Grand Divisions" that are topographically, politically, economically, and culturally different. East Tennessee even attempted to secede from the rest of the State during the Civil War. In 1820, Historically, Tennessee's top three manufactured goods were whiskey, blacksmith's products, and flour. Many 1820 East Tennessee census population schedules have been lost, but manufactures schedules survive for most counties.

Tennessee Birth Records
Online indexes of some Tennessee births:
- FamilySearch.org
- Ancestry.com

The larger cities in Tennessee kept early birth records:
- Nashville (beginning in 1881)
- Knoxville (beginning in 1881)
- Chattanooga (beginning in 1879)
- Memphis (beginning in 1874)

In 1874, a few Tennessee counties began sporadic recording of births. Most counties began recording births in 1908. Statewide registration of births began in 1914. Delayed birth records exist from as early as 1869.

Birth records created more than 100 years ago:
Obtain a copy from TSLA (Tennessee State Library and Archives) or from the County Office.

Birth records 100 or fewer years old:
The Tennessee Department of Public Health, Office of Vital Records stores birth records less than 100 years old.
Genealogists can request verification of the information on these birth records. Immediate family members can request certified copies.

Tennessee Marriage Records
Online indexes of Tennessee marriages:
- FamilySearch.org
- Ancestry.com
- Shelby County Register of Deeds – statewide marriage records from 1980 to 2014; Shelby County marriage records 1830 to 2014
- TSLA (Tennessee State Library and Archives) - an index of marriage records 1790 – 1861 and 1945 until 50 years ago.

Most counties began recording marriages at the time of the county's creation. In 1838, the state mandated registration of marriages at the county office. Early county marriage record ledgers usually listed the names of the bride & groom, the cleric or Justice of the Peace, and (sometimes) the bondsman. From the 1880s through the 1920s, some counties kept duplicate copies of the marriage license.
TSLA (Tennessee State Library and Archives) has copies of marriage records or county marriage ledgers 1790 – 1861 and 1945 – 50 years ago. Order a copy of a marriage record from 1790 – 1861 and from July 1945 till 50 years ago from TSLA.

The Tennessee Vital Records Office keeps marriage and divorce records for 50 years. Order a copy of a marriage record less than 50 years old from the Tennessee Office of Vital Records.

Tennessee Death Records
