Hayner Library Databases Provide Help to All Ages

Hayner Library has a wide array of online resources to help teachers, students, and anyone interested in topics for research or for self-improvement. Library databases, sometimes called online resources or online databases, are organized collections of electronic information that allow you to search for a particular topic, article, or book in a variety of ways (e.g., keyword, subject, author, title). When you search one of these databases, you are not searching the Web; you’re searching pre-selected material that is the equivalent of what you might find on a library shelf in print format.

Subscription databases consist of published journals, magazines, documents, newspapers, books, image collections, and more. Hayner Library has purchased subscription access to a variety of online databases. These resources are accessed online through the Hayner Library website at www.haynerlibrary.org.

Why do libraries subscribe to databases?
- To help students doing research papers by providing accurate, authoritative articles on a wide variety of topics. Each article found is cited and can be converted to a selected citation style (MLA, APA, etc.), making it easy for students to copy and paste the citation into their papers.
- To offer access to thousands of articles from hundreds of journals and magazines, many more than a library could physically have on hand.
- To offer patrons a quick, easy way to obtain reliable information on topics of interest.

Hayner Library subscribes to more than 20 subscription databases. Some of these databases are as follows:
- Biography Reference Center is a comprehensive collection of full-text biographies.
- Literary Reference Center offers book summaries, author information, and more.
- Academic Search Premier offers peer-reviewed, full-text journal articles from many academic areas, including biology, chemistry, physics, psychology, and religion.
- History Reference Center offers articles, images, videos, and primary source documents on American and world history.
- Science Reference Center includes biology, chemistry, Earth and space science, environmental science, health, medicine, life science, physics, scientists, and technology.
- Points of View Reference Center provides students with a series of controversial essays that present multiple sides of a current issue.
- Auto Repair Reference Center has repair information for model years 1954 to 2010.
- NovelList Plus is a reader’s advisory for fiction and nonfiction. NovelList K-8 Plus is designed for teachers and kids. Features Grab and Go book lists, Picture Book Extenders.
- ConsumerReports.org provides the most current reviews of consumer products.
- Hobbies & Crafts Reference Center offers detailed “how-to” instructions and creative ideas for hobby enthusiasts provided from leading hobby and craft magazines.
- Home Improvement Reference Center has articles, videos, and images to help homeowners tackle home repairs safely.
- Legal Information Reference Center provides full text for many of the top consumer legal reference books and contains thousands of legal forms.

These reliable, accurate information sources are free with your Hayner Library card number. You can access them from home or within the library at www.haynerlibrary.org by clicking Online Resources on the home screen.

To learn more about Hayner Library databases and how to use them, attend the Database Class/Library Tour held on Saturday, September 20, from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. in the Multipurpose Room at Hayner Library in Alton Square Mall. This class is free of charge but does require registration. To register, call 1-800-613-3163. For group database classes and library tours, please contact Sharon Windham at 433-2861.
In memory of my dear friend, Dr. Ned DuVivier

Dr. Edward DuVivier of Alton passed away on May 21, 2014. He was a retired Alton pediatrician and a volunteer at Hayner Library for twenty years.

Our life is a long journey. Along the way we meet people who change us in the best way. They have something to teach us about life. Dr. Ned was one of my best teachers. He taught me how to grow old with dignity. He taught me we are never too old to learn. He showed me how to accept getting older. He understood why our bodies do what they do. He taught me to look at aging as one of life’s many roads we must take on our journey.

When Dr. Ned retired from being a pediatrician, at 70 years old, he called me at the library and asked if he could deliver books for me. He was one of the first volunteers to deliver books for Hayner. He came every week to pick up boxes of books to go to nursing homes and senior high-rise apartments. He volunteered for me for twenty years.

Dr. Ned was a huge advocate for AARP. He fought for senior citizens. He made many trips to the capital in Springfield to stand up for the rights of seniors. At 90, his eyesight began to fail, and he had to quit volunteering for us.

I stayed in contact with him these last few years. I would see him at church every Sunday, moving slowly but always ready for a kiss and hug from me. Even though his body slowed down, his brain kept working and was always ready to learn something new. If I had a problem, I knew I could go to him and he would give me good advice.

My last visit with him was this winter. My granddaughter, Brooklyn, and I made cookies and delivered them to a few friends who were under the weather. We stopped by Dr. Ned’s. He was in his wheelchair reading. He looked up and saw Brook and right away wanted to know all about her. He had so many questions for Brooklyn. He talked with her as if he had known her forever. He wanted to know about her school, what she liked best in school. He talked about where she lived. He asked if she played sports. We left him with a kiss and hug from both of us.

So when you meet those special people on your journey, take time to listen to them. They will touch your life in ways you never dreamed possible.

I will always have Dr. Ned’s lessons tucked away for ready reference. I am so happy to have known this kind and gentle man . . . Ned.

See What’s Coming Out in DVD!

Curious about what new DVDs we’re adding to our collections? Now it’s easier to keep current on new releases. At each circulation desk, we can provide you with a catalog featuring the jacket covers of our latest additions. Just page through the catalog and order the titles you are interested in. Ask for the book at the circulation desks of the Downtown Library and the Alton Square Mall Library.

Did you know that you can access our card catalog on your mobile device by visiting The Hayner Public Library District’s website? Key “Hayner Public Library” into your favorite mobile search engine and browse our collection by clicking on “search the catalog.” You can also find our catalog by visiting www.illshareit.com on your smartphone or tablet and entering your ZIP code. Because of the accessibility and ease of use of these websites on mobile devices, Hayner will no longer be supporting the BOOPSIE app after June 28, 2014. Patrons will still be able to check availability and place requests on any item while using these catalogs.
Hayner Library Supports Summer Jazz Series

The Hayner Public Library District, in partnership with the North Alton–Godfrey Business Council, Greater Gateway Association of Realtors, Andy's Auto Body, Senior Services Plus, Liberty Bank, Strategic Consulting, Inc., and Tony's North of Jerseyville, will provide sponsorship for the “Expressions—a Musical Experience” (formerly Jazz in the Park) Concert Series to be held May through September 2014.

All the concerts are free of charge and will be held at Alton Senior High Performing Arts Auditorium except the August 13 concert, which will be held at Hatheway Cultural Center, Lewis & Clark Community College. These programs of various jazz performances are a great way to spend a summer evening.

All concerts start at 7:00 p.m. The remainder of the summer schedule includes:

- July 9 “A Tribute to the Rat Pack” featuring the Little Big Band and vocalist Steve Shininger
- August 13 “Sentimental Journey Dance Band”
- September 10 “St. Louis Symphony Ensemble”
- September 24 “Shades of Blue Jazz Big Band” featuring the world-renowned jazz ensemble from Scott Air Force Base.

STEM Learning @Hayner Library

Meet with Dr. Brad Noble for an open discussion on Science, Technology, Engineering, and Math (STEM) on Wednesday, September 10, from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. Multipurpose Room at Hayner Library Alton Square.

Dr. Noble is an Associate Professor in the Department of Electrical and Computer Engineering at SIUE. A native of Illinois, he obtained a B.S. and an M.S. from SIUE before he earned his Doctorate of Science from Washington University in St. Louis. His areas of expertise include embedded systems, network engineering, signal processing, interfacing, and the design and fabrication of innovative circuitry. Since joining the faculty at SIUE in 1996, Dr. Noble has taught seventeen different subjects, three of which he developed. He is the recipient of the SIUE 2007–2008 Teaching Excellence Award and, most recently, the 2011 SIUE Alumni Association Great Teacher Award.

Getting students interested in Science, Technology, Engineering, and Math, and improving STEM education is a national priority. STEM education fosters a love of science by encouraging and inspiring learners to understand how we relate to science in our everyday lives. Hayner Public library is pleased to provide an opportunity for the community to meet with STEM professional Dr. Brad Noble for an open discussion on these science topics.

To support STEM learning, the Hayner Public Library District has enhanced its science collection through a grant awarded by the Illinois State Library from funds provided by the Institute of Museum and Library Services, under the federal Library Services and Technology Act. The project, called Select Science, features new STEM books showcased in displays throughout the Hayner libraries. Come join us for an interesting discussion, and check out some new science books!
Our Local History —
The Great River Road

Warmer weather is finally here. Time to get out the shorts and tee shirts, dust off our bikes (motorized as well as chain-driven) and hit the Great River Road for some fun in the sun! Most of us have driven down, ridden over, or walked along that beautiful stretch of pavement, but do you know the history of this scenic highway? Here are some amazing facts!

Beginning at the headwaters of the “Big Muddy” in Lake Itasca State Park, Minnesota, the Great River Road ends at the mouth of the “Old Man” in Venice, Louisiana, giving it nearly 3,000 miles of highway through ten states. The Great River Road winds its way through all sorts of terrain, couring across state parks and through vibrant metropolises. It runs alongside lush prairies, thick forests, and towering limestone bluffs. Few realize that this beautiful “highway” is not one stretch of continuous road, but segments of designated routes that follow the Mississippi River. The road changes direction often, crosses over the river in many places, and lingers in small towns and down dusty paths other roads have forgotten.

The construction of the 13-mile strip between Alton and Grafton began as a Works Progress Administration (WPA) project in 1940. WPA was a national work relief program aided by state and local governments to generate jobs for the unemployed between 1935 and 1943. The road was officially named the McAdams Memorial Highway, in honor of John D. McAdams, the man responsible for its inception. The opening of this expanse of road in 1964 brought the small touristy villages and towns between Alton and Grafton together and made traveling to them a pleasant experience.

Clifton Terrace Park is a charming little rest area off the Sam Vadadalene Bike Trail. The small park boasts a playground, memorial trees, and a stone kiosk with the story of the Christofel Louis Stiritz family. Visitors at the park can also get a glimpse inside the remnants of the family’s underground wine cellar.

Elsah, a quaint, charming, and quiet little community nestled between the towering bluff walls of Mt. Radiance and Mt. Pisgua, is rich in history, architecture, and beauty. In 1975 the entire village was placed on the National Register of Historic Places. Sometimes referred to as “a town that time forgot,” this little hamlet dances to a much slower life.

Chautauqua is a small private community near Elsah. During the late 1800s it was a summer resort destination for the upper classes and only accessible by steamboat.

Most travelers along this stretch of the Great River Road are destined for the river town of Grafton. Located at the confluence of the Mississippi and Illinois Rivers, the town is full of character and appeal. Founded in 1836, the community provides an indulgence of entertainments packed together in a small walkable area. Visitors find enough attractions to satisfy all ages, from antique shopping and parasailing to fish sandwiches and wine.

Leaving Grafton, a stretch of the Great River Road loses sight of the water as the highway begins to tighten, with disarranged curves and more frequent glimpses of wildlife. The Marquette Monument, a large white cross made from a solid piece of dolomite, sits along a bluff between Grafton and Marquette State Park. This monument was constructed in 1929 to honor the site where European explorers Marquette and Joliet crossed the river to enter into the present state of Illinois in 1673. If you do not take the Brussels Ferry across the Illinois River into Calhoun County, the Pere Marquette State Park comes into view. This is a magnificent 8,050-acre park with attractions such as miles of hiking trails and an impressive limestone and timber lodge built during the Great Depression by the Civilian Conservation Corps. The park is also the residence of Native American burial mounds, a substantial visitor center, picnic areas, and a campground.

Continue on until you reach the small town of Kampsville, and you have completed the entire ride along our area’s portion of the 3,000-mile Great River Road. The 50-mile span between Alton and Kampsville received national recognition in 1998 by the Federal Highway Administration when it was designated a “National Scenic Byway,” making it one of only 21 roads in the United States with this title.

To learn more about this remarkable road or the history of the area in which we live, visit the historic Illinois Room in the Genealogy & Local History Library at the 401 State Street location.

African American Allegiance in the Revolutionary War

Throughout the course of American history, African Americans have had a long, hard struggle in the fight for freedom. Not many people realize this struggle stretched all the way back to the Revolutionary War (1775–1783). Both slaves and freemen fought during this war with the hope of gaining freedom for their people while making a monumental change in history.

The well-known painting of George Washington crossing the Delaware on Christmas Day in 1776, by German American artist Emanuel Gottlieb Leutze, shows a black patriot helping to row the boat. Historians dispute the question of whether this figure represents any one particular person or patriot, but the artist’s choice to include an African American figure is historically important in that it supports the significant role they played in the American Revolution.

African American men served in a wide range of positions while helping to carry on the war. Positions included combat soldiers, spies, laborers, and cooks. Free and enslaved blacks served alongside white patriots as well as serving in all-black militia units of the Continental Army and the Navy.

They not only served with American forces as patriots of the Continental Army; after Great Britain promised freedom for all African Americans who enlisted for wartime service, many risked death as they made their way to the English lines to enlist with the British Army. After the war’s end, these eager Loyalists were surprised to find that this was nothing more than an empty promise.

It is no surprise that not all African American males were eager to enlist and serve an administration that denied them the right to free citizenship, and some did not enlist by their own choice. Some states allowed a slave owner who had been drafted to send a substitute in his place. With little hesitation, many of these men sent slaves to be their replacements during the war.

African Americans were part of many key events during the war. As early as April 1775 black Minutemen were fighting at Lexington and Concord, they participated in the Battle of Bunker Hill, and many died during the harsh winter at Valley Forge.

Black troops fought in most of the major battles, their devotion and loyalty earning them honor and praise from their commanders. Some have been recognized in other ways throughout history. In October 1968, Peter Salem, an African American patriot of the American Revolutionary War, was depicted on a postage stamp, portraying his valor during the Battle of Bunker Hill.

African American genealogy can be challenging to say the least, but it is not impossible. When you know where, and more importantly how, to search, it can become less confusing. The book Forgotten Patriots, published by the Daughters of the American Revolution, identifies more than 5,000 men, either slave or freemen, who may have been patriots during the Revolutionary War. In 2010, this book was honored with the prestigious Donald Lines Jacobus Award from the American Society of Genealogists.

The Hayner Public Library District Genealogy & Local History Library has a copy of this book, along with others in the collection that may help locate African American Revolutionary War patriots in your ancestry. The library is located at 401 State Street, and the staff will be happy to assist you in all areas of your genealogical research!

During our last “Friend-Raiser” program hosted by the Daughters of the American Revolution and the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library, the Ninian Edwards Chapter of the DAR donated a three-volume set of books relating to women in the Revolutionary War era. Like African American research, records for women (particularly during this time) can also be hard to locate, so we are extremely pleased to be able to offer these books as part of our historic Illinois Room collection.

Branching Out Classes 2014–2015

Following the success of the 2013–2014 Branching Out classes, the Hayner Genealogy & Local History Library in Alton, Illinois, is continuing the program this year. These classes include many aspects of genealogical research and are suitable for the beginner as well as the more experienced researcher.

There are twelve classes in all, and you can come to one class or as many as you like. The classes will be taught on the second Thursday of the month at 10 a.m. with the same class offered on the following Saturday at 10 a.m. This gives you the opportunity to attend whichever one of the two days is most convenient. Class size will be small, and seating is limited, so reserve your seat early. Be sure to specify which class and day you want to attend.

Each session will last for approximately one hour, depending on how many questions are asked. We will share tips and tricks with you, so be sure to bring your questions. Remember, you can always schedule an appointment for more in-depth research. There is never a charge for an appointment, and we are happy to help.

Each class will have handouts for you to keep and refer to later as you go through your research. The classes will cover beginning genealogy and the Illinois Room, Heritage Quest Online, Newspaper Archive research, the census, courthouse research and vital records, city directories and maps, the Family Search website, organizing your family history, military research, Ancestry Library Edition, property research, and immigration and naturalization. All classes will take place at the Genealogy & Local History Library, 401 State Street. Make sure to check the Special Events section of each newsletter to see what classes will be offered that quarter. We look forward to seeing you in class!

Bill & Kate Isles
Tuesday, September 23, 6:30 p.m.
Bill & Kate Isles are a nationally touring singer/songwriter duo based in Duluth, Minn. In 1993 Bill was a rare survivor of sudden cardiac arrest. Instead of ending his life, it jump-started his creative energies, resulting in a 150-show-per-year itinerary, presenting his profoundly meaningful songs. He is joined by his wife, cowriter, and musical collaborator, Kate. Her gentle presence, luscious vocals, and intuitive harmonies have endeared her to audiences. Words like “transcendent” and “mesmerizing” and “slapstick” are among the descriptions of their concerts, and fans of all ages tell of listening to their albums over and over again. Register at 1-800-613-3163.

Annette Harrison
The Founding of St. Louis
Tuesday, October 7, 6:30 p.m.
In this exciting historical storytelling program you will be taken back in time to 1764 when Pierre Laclede declared that “St. Louis will become one of the finest cities in America.” Meet the founding families, including a 14-year-old who supervised the building of this early French settlement west of the Mississippi. Learn about the multicultural community that allowed the daughters of a freed slave, a Native American, and a French settler to be best friends! Register at 1-800-613-3163.

Herbie’s Game
Herbie’s Game, by Timothy Hallinan, is a lighthearted crime fiction tale. It is about a career house burglar, Junior Bender, who is hired by a crime boss named Wattles to recover an important document that was stolen from his office safe. This list contains the names of those that Wattles uses in what he calls his disconnect, which is a very convoluted chain of communication. It is designed to ensure that the assassinations and other crimes he orders are not traced back to him. So, with that in mind, it is very important that this list does not fall into the wrong hands.
This assignment sends Junior on a wild caper where he meets all sorts of colorful characters and finds out a lot about his own past and ends up questioning the choices he has made in his life.
Hallinan is schooled in all of the great popular crime mystery authors. While the Elmore Leonard, Donald Westlake, and Chandler influences are quite obvious, there is also quite a bit of Damon Runyon in there as well.
This book is very engaging, and I think it is a great summer read; one to have on your lap at the beach or up at the lake.

VALUABLE VOLUNTEER

John Gibbons

John Gibbons started volunteering for Hayner in 2005, though he had put in numerous hours in the Genealogy Library before he became my Jack-of-all-trades volunteer.

He originally worked in the so-called “Mouse Hole,” an area in Hayner’s storage building, which was the old Hudson Jewelry Store next to the downtown library. We processed and discarded old books, getting ready for our big move into the Alton Square Mall library. John came down every day, Monday through Friday, to work with me and other volunteers. He kept statistics for us and processed the books.

John also volunteered to help me with Operation Soldiers. We received hundreds of donations for our soldiers overseas, which we boxed and mailed. Through the generous contributions of our community and Hayner’s wonderful volunteers, we sent more than 300 boxes to the soldiers.

John then helped tag hundreds of books with sensor tags. The next big job for him was helping us move books from downtown to the new library downstairs at Alton Square. John never turned me down for any project that I needed help with.

I knew how much he loved genealogy, and with the new genealogy building, we were going to need volunteers to help at the desk. John was a perfect match. He not only helps the librarians, but he also is working on Alton parochial schools and their historical trails. He has used the Alton Telegraph to find information and pictures about schools. He has finished with St. Patrick’s School and is now working on St. Matthew’s School. He also has done the family histories of the Gibbons, Fritsche, Rynders, and Berghoff families. Along with the family history books, he also wrote a thesis on the legend of the Piasa Bird. These can be found in our Genealogy & Local History Library.

Now I am sure you can understand why I call John my Jack-of-all-trades volunteer. Maybe I should call him my John-of-all-trades!

John grew up in Alton, living on Virginia Avenue with his parents and siblings. He tells me he had a very normal childhood. He had a paper route, cut grass, and played in the fields of St. Anthony’s Hospital. He walked to school, built model airplanes, and really enjoyed street sports. He feels lucky that his childhood was in simpler times. There were families with lots of children to play with in his neighborhood, and the kids made their own fun.

John went to St. Mary’s grade school in Alton. He was a good student. He loved music and attributes his love for choral music to Sister Theona, his music teacher.

John thought he wanted to be a priest. During his youth, if you chose to go into the priesthood you started preparing in your first year of high school. He was sent to the Pontifical College Josephinum in Ohio. After seven years he decided not to become a priest.

He came back to the Alton area and spent two years at St. Louis University. He graduated in 1959 with a degree in English and a minor in philosophy. In 1990 he went to Lewis & Clark College and received a Library Technician degree. He actually interned a semester for Hayner Library.

John was in the service from July 1959 to December 1962. He was in the Reserves from January 1963 to September 1967. He is a graduate of Officer Candidate School and served as Air Intelligence Officer for Attack Squadron 42 (VA-42) at Oceana Naval Air Station in Virginia Beach, Virginia.

John went to work for McDonnell Douglas in 1963. His jobs included editing Engineering Flight Text reports; acting as an administrator for contracts and pricing; and working in the Law Department–Government Regulations. He retired in 1998.

They have three children, two boys and a girl. I asked John what made his marriage so special. He said that Barbara is very talented. She plays the piano, paints, sews, and has a beautiful soprano voice. He loves her energy and dedication to family and friends.

For relaxation John reads novels and works on genealogy. He and Barbara both enjoy going to the St. Louis Symphony and Alton Little Theater. One of the most special experiences in his life was singing in St. Ambrose Parish adult choir for 30 years. It gave him great joy but also gave him one of the saddest times in his life. He had to step down from the choir when his tenor voice stopped working the way he thought it should.

One of John’s greatest honors was being elected president of the old Riverbend United Way. It was a position he took great pride in. I think whatever John does, whether it is work or family or volunteering in his community, he gives it his all!

I asked John what advice he would give for living a good life. He told me to know yourself, your strengths and your weaknesses. A good life to John is to have been faithful to the promises you have made and have provided for the needs of your family, all with a solid moral and religious basis.

The last thing that I asked John was what he liked about volunteering for Hayner Library. He said, “Good books, good people.”

We are so lucky to have John Gibbons as a volunteer.

Select Science Books Have Arrived!

The new Select Science books have arrived at Hayner Public Library! Select Science is a library program emphasizing interest and resources in the sciences with books purchased through a grant awarded by the Illinois State Library. Area educational and science organizations as well as the staff at the library all contributed suggestions for new books.

Local organizations such as the National Great Rivers Museum, Army Corps of Engineers, Alton School District, the Center for American Archeology, and The Nature Institute each contributed suggestions for books that bring real-life applications of biology, ecology, chemistry, and engineering, to name a few, that pertain to the many scientific endeavors in which the Riverbend area is involved.

According to Hayner Reference Librarian Jean Shimunek, and Assistant Director Katie Schrimpf, the Select Science books also include books on technology and engineering, math, AP study guides for math and biology, SAT and ACT math subject test books, a set of pro and con books on the future of renewable energy, a set of books on the issues of the environment, electronics, makerspace books (tinkering), and more.

Two exciting sets of books, Core Concepts, involve the basic blocks of science. Not only do they conform to Common Core State Standards initiatives, they are intriguing and well written with great illustrations and examples for projects. Shimunek expects that these books will interest not only students, but many adults.

Come to the library to explore the new books in the Select Science collection, on display throughout the libraries. Although all the books have not yet been delivered, many are available for checkout now!

These science books were purchased by Hayner Library through a grant awarded by the Illinois State Library, a Division of the Office of Secretary of State, using funds provided by the Institute of Museum and Library Services (IMLS), under the federal Library Services and Technology Act (LSTA).
