

Genealogy Research in Alabama

The name "Alabama" is a Muskogean Indian word that meant "campsite" or "clearing."

Native American Tribes who lived in the area that is now called Alabama included: Alabama – Biloxi – Koasati – Mobile – and Muskogee (Creek), Cherokee, Chickasaw, and Choctaw (called the Civilized Tribes by Europeans)

Most of these people were forcibly moved to reservations in Oklahoma and Texas during the Indian Removals of the 1800's. The tribes are not extinct, but except for the descendants of Alabama Indians who escaped from Removal, they do not live in Alabama anymore.

Spanish Explorers

- 1519: Spanish explorers are believed to have arrived at Mobile Bay.
- 1540: The explorer Hernando De Soto visited the area.

French Settlement

- 1702: The first permanent settlement, Fort Louis de la Mobile, was founded by the French north of the present site of Mobile.
- 1710–1763: Alabama area was governed by France. English, French, and Spanish settlers as well as settlers from South Carolina and Georgia established trading posts.
- 1711: Mobile was the capital of the Louisiana Territory
- 1720: Biloxi became the capital of the Louisiana Territory
- 1722: New Orleans became the territory capital.

British Influence

1763: The British gained control of the area through the Treaty of Paris, calling it British West Florida.

U. S. Government

1783: Britain ceded the southern region, around Mobile, to Spain. It became known as Spanish West Florida.

Spain and the fledgling United States disagreed over the boundary between the southern and northern areas.

1795: In the Treaty of San Lorenzo, Spain and the U.S. set the boundary between the southern and the northern areas at the 31st parallel, a few miles north of Mobile.

1798: Georgia abandoned claims to the area. The area north of the 31st parallel became part of the Mississippi Territory.

1800: A census was taken of part of what is now Alabama (Washington County in Mississippi territory). 494 African Americans were listed in that census.

1800 - 1820: Settlers migrated from Virginia and the Carolinas to the central and southern part of what is now Alabama, bringing their slaves with them.

1800-1810: More settlers moved from Tennessee into the northern part of what is now Alabama.

1802: The Choctaw Indians ceded land.

1802: Georgia abandoned claims to the area. Spain controlled the Mobile area until the War of 1812.

1805 - 1806: The Choctaw and Cherokee Indians ceded more land to the U. S. government.

1812–1814: During the War of 1812, on 15 April 1813, U.S. forces captured Mobile from the Spanish.

General Andrew Jackson defeated the Creek Indians in several battles. Some Creeks and other Indian tribes were removed to the West.

More European settlers began flooding into the region, bringing their slaves with them.

1814 - 1819: The Creek, Chickasaw, Choctaw and Cherokee Indians again ceded land to the U. S.

1817: In Marengo County (Demopolis), the Frenchman Parmentier obtained a grant for 150 French refugees who came from Philadelphia. They settled at St. Stephens on the Tombigbee River.

March 3, 1817: Mississippi Territory was divided into the state of Mississippi and the Alabama Territory.

Statehood

December 14, 1819: Alabama became the 22nd state.

1820: The first Federal census was conducted in Alabama; all results were reported missing.

1830: In the Treaty of Dancing Rabbit Creek, the Choctaw Indians gave up 10 million acres of land in Alabama and Mississippi. They were given land in what is now Oklahoma.

The second Federal Census was conducted in Alabama; the results were incomplete.

1832: The Choctaw and Chickasaw Indians ceded more land.

1835: The treaty of New Echota was signed. The Cherokees ceded land. This led to the removal of most Indian tribes from Alabama. A few Creeks and Cherokees remained.

1839: The slave ship Clothilde, with Guineau Africans on board, arrived at Mobile. Because they were unable to be sold, the slaves were freed. These African Americans formed a community called African Town in the suburb near Mobile called Plateau.

1800's: The economy in Alabama was primarily agricultural. European settlers owned farms or plantations. Work was done primarily by slave labor.

1860: The slave population was 435,080.

1861–1868: The American Civil War and Reconstruction changed the culture of Alabama society.

1865: Thirty-five black schools were set up by the Freedmen's Bureau and the American Missionary Association.

1893: Congress established a commission to exchange remaining Indian tribal lands in the southeastern United States for land allotments to individuals in Oklahoma. More than 250,000 people applied to the commission for enrollment and land. Just over 100,000 were approved. The Dawes Commission records include Applications for enrollment, Enrollment cards, and Letter logs. Indexes and images of Dawes Commission records are on the websites Fold3 and National Archives.

1902: The Eastern Cherokee sued the United States to get the funds due them under the treaties of 1835, 1836, and 1845. In 1906, the court awarded more than $1 million to be split among the Eastern Cherokees. There were 45,847 applications filed, representing some 90,000 individuals. Indexes and images of these applications (Guion Miller Rolls) are online at Fold3 and National Archives.
