History

Colonial Era European Settlement

In 1606, King James chartered the Virginia Company of London. The first settlers established "James Cittie" at Point Comfort on the James River in May 1607. Marshy terrain, hunger, malaria, gold fever, and personality clashes almost destroyed Jamestown, but it survived to become the first permanent English settlement.

In the 1600's, King James made Virginia a royal colony

In 1614, John Rolfe shipped tobacco to England, and established a market for the crop. Tobacco plantations sprang up in the eastern tidewater and piedmont area. Many indentured servants, convicts and slaves arrived to work on the plantations. About 75% of early colonists were in bondage!

In 1662, Church of England law was established. However, Quakers and Huguenots began settling some areas of Virginia.

In the 1700's, Germans and Scots-Irish settled the Shenandoah Valley along with Protestants from New Jersey, Maryland and Delaware.

Welsh, Irish, Scottish and German pioneers traveled west of the Blue Ridge Mountains and created small farms in the Valley of Virginia.

In the second half of the 1700's, the Cumberland Gap was discovered and settlers began filling what is now Kentucky and West Virginia.

In 1763 Britain banned settlement west of the Appalachian Mountains, but Virginians were among the first to explore and settle what is now Kentucky and Tennessee.

King George III established the Stamp Act. Colonists resented having to buy stamps for newspapers, calendars and marriage licenses.

In 1774, George Washington and Patrick Henry attended the first Continental Congress representing Virginia.

In 1776, Thomas Jefferson, another Virginia delegate, wrote the Declaration of Independence. Virginia adopted its first constitution, declaring itself a commonwealth governed by its people rather than by a foreign monarch.

Post-Revolutionary War

In 1784, Virginia ceded the western part of its territory to the United States government.

In 1786, the Virginia Congress created the Statute of Religious Freedom; citizens could choose their own religion.

In 1788, Virginia became the 10th U.S. state.

The first surviving federal census that includes part of Virginia is the 1810 census.

Virginia gave up its claims to the Old Northwest Territory. Its counties south of the Ohio River became the State of Kentucky in 1792.

In 1809, Nat Turner led a slave rebellion against plantation owners. He was captured and hanged.

1n 1859, John Brown, an abolitionist, led the raid on Harper's Ferry to steal weapons. Robert E. Lee assisted in capturing him.

In 1861 Virginia seceded from the Union. Richmond became the capital of the Confederacy. Virginia was the scene of many Civil War battles.

In 1863, 50 anti-secession counties broke away from the state and formed West Virginia.

In 1865 Robert E. Lee surrendered to Ulysses S. Grant, ending the Civil War. The 13 amendment was ratified, abolishing slavery.

In 1867, valuable coal deposits were discovered, leading to the development of the coal mining industry.

Virginia rejoined the Union in 1870.

Virginia Birth Records
Colonial Era
Churches recorded births (baptisms).

Birth Records After Statehood
In 1853, Virginia passed a law requiring counties to record births. Not all counties complied.
- Some counties used pre-Revolutionary War Episcopal parish registers as official birth records.
- The Civil War disrupted record keeping.
- The Library of Virginia and the Family History Library in Salt Lake City, UT have birth records from 1853-1896 on microfilm.
From 1896-1911, births were not recorded. Some delayed birth records were later created for those years.
In 1912, statewide registration of births began.

Obtain a copy of a delayed birth record for the years 1869 to 1911 or a copy of a birth record for the years 1912 to the present for a fee from the Virginia Division of Vital Records.

Colonial Era
In the colonial era, churches recorded marriages.
Post-Revolutionary War
In 1780, a new law required ministers to report all marriages to the County Clerk or the Clerks of Independent Cities.
Some counties used pre-Revolutionary War Episcopal parish registers as official marriage records.
Virginia Marriages 1853 to the Present:
In 1853, a new law required the Clerk of the Circuit Court in the county or in the independent city to issue marriage licenses and keep marriage records

Obtain Copies
Pre-Revolutionary War Marriages – Search for church marriage records.
Marriages from 1780 – 1853: Search for copies in church records or in county Clerk of the Circuit Clerk offices.
Marriage records from 1853 to the present – obtain copies from the county Clerk of the Circuit Court or from the Virginia State Office of Vital Records.
Marriages in an independent city of Virginia - contact the Clerk of the City Circuit Court.
Note: For marriages after 1865, ask for the marriage license or the marriage register. The license or register usually contains more information than the marriage certificate.
